

Chris Harper spent the afternoon with Year 6 who guided him around their art exhibition. He found them 'exceptional' for two reasons.

There were two reasons I found this visit exceptional. Firstly, the evidence of research that the Year 6 children did to reference an existing artist in their piece of art.

The second , and in some ways even more impressive, reason was the confident and in depth explanations the pupils provided for each piece of work.

The pupils talked knowledgeably about the inspiring artist and , most importantly for me, their views on the art.

Governor Chris Harper says: "All in all, a great triumph and wonderful that so many parents and villagers managed to come too."
